

High

A confrontation with divinity, your own higher intelligence, is going to change you. You'll face blazing activation of your brain.

A thousand sensual feelings are emitted and at once sending out waves of climaxes which thrill the mind to even greater heights.

Albert Einstein said, "...To know that what is impenetrable to us really exists, manifesting itself as the highest wisdom and the most radiant beauty..."

American education is a highly dangerous, addictive, contracting process. (That was Timothy Leary.)

Before taking the drug, I feel apprehensive about the possibility of flipping out, but during the high, I am afraid I won't flip out enough.

Children are not yet fools, but we shall turn them into imbeciles like ourselves, with high IQ's if possible.

Every detail is seen and rendered as a living jewel and all these jewels are harmoniously combined into a whole which is a jewel of yet a higher order of visionary intensity.

Every man and woman who reaches the higher levels of spiritual and intellectual development feels the presence of a Higher Intelligence.

Every religion uses the term infinite to describe its highest conception and all mystics have seen infinity.

Excitement was brewing in the Haight. The psychedelic city-state was having its brief golden age. The energy was unmistakably sky-high.

Experiences of the consciousness of particular, stable, immutable and durable substances are perceived as being high spiritual states involving an element of sacredness.

feelings of joy, peace, love, blessedness—Such high-intensity emotion is far removed from everyday experience.

For the proper use of understanding, a wider consciousness is needed and a higher standpoint to enlarge one's horizons.

God will remain somehow remote and "out there" unless there is a complete turnabout into which all references to the high and the beyond is translated into terms of depth.

High civilizations do not fail; they blossom. (That's until they are crushed by fascist force.)

In high states, users have reported that they can perceive connections and associations of ideas that were not accessible to them in the non-high state.

In the 1960's, more people than ever before had a glimpse of a higher, happier, more living reality. For a moment, they really SAW.

In the 20th century, mythology speaks almost a dead language, for the modern mind knows of no order of truth higher than historical fact. Myth is therefore rejected.

Is it not strange that an experience which is regarded with such fear and distrust by those who have not had it, is so highly regarded by those who have?

It is noteworthy that most of the world's highest religious and philosophical thought originated in altered states of consciousness in individuals.

It is prohibited in highly technological and complex civilizations to lift the reality curtain and gaze upon the naked beyond.

Jesus did not say that this higher state of consciousness realized in him was his alone for all time. Nor did he call us to worship him.

Jesus showed us the way to a higher state and called upon us to realize it, to make it real, actual—individually and as the race.

Liberation while living is considered to be the highest experience, a fusion of the individual with the universal.

Magnificent revelations, both spiritual and philosophical can occur marking the highest union of experience and intellect.

Members of the new breed seek a culture founded in higher consciousness, a culture whose institutions are based on love, a culture that fulfills the perennial philosophy.

Mescaline raises all colors to a higher order and makes the percipient aware of innumerable fine shades of difference, to which, at ordinary times, he is completely blind.

Most people discover a deep connection with an inner source, higher self, or God, and they might experience the world as an expression of the Divine.

Most people who use LSD and marijuana to get high don't really know how to use it. (That was Timothy Leary.)

New energies excite our highest aspirations and can alter our central notions of man and his place on this planet.

Nothing is higher than these mysteries. They have not only shown us the way to live joyfully, but they have taught us to die with hope.

Particularly noteworthy are the positive results obtained with cases highly resistant to conventional forms of therapy.

People who have used LSD are much more attuned to getting turned on. Marijuana usually sends them much higher than it does others.

Profound self-understanding and a high degree of self-transformation may reward the subject.

Sexual arousal can reach an unusually high degree and can be expressed in scenes of orgies, sexual perversions or rhythmic sensual dances. (eyes closed)

Since earliest times, man has felt impulses to rise above his everyday self and achieve either some higher insight or some release from mundane concerns—or both.

Some of the highest spirits of the West have spoken through music, expressing through sound something of the upper reaches of consciousness.

Subjects underwent highly intense and unusual experiences which may change perception of life experiences.

The aim of all Eastern religion, like the aim of LSD, is basically to get high, that is, to expand your consciousness and find ecstasy and revelation within.

The Church has always been highly suspicious of mystics because they seem to be insubordinate and to claim equality or worse, identity with God.

The drug-induced experience has been regarded by primitives and even by the highly civilized as intrinsically divine.

The glory and wonder of pure existence belong to another order, beyond the power of even the highest art to express.

The high value, the meaningfulness, and the intensity reported of such experiences suggest that the perception has a different scope from that of normal consciousness.

The new state is one in which we can reorganize or re-imprint our nervous system for higher functioning.

The quest for higher consciousness had always been the province of small esoteric mystery cults.

The rate of recovery or significant improvement was often higher with LSD therapy than with traditional methods.

The visionary experience is so highly prized that throughout the ages of recorded history, people have done their best to induce visions.

There is no "higher religion" without mysticism because there is no apprehension of the meaning of reality without mysticism.

This other dimension of experience is understood to be of a higher order of reality than the dualistic dimension.

This "very high sort of seeing" is the heart and veritable core of the psychedelic experience.

Throughout history, most cultures had a great appreciation for nonordinary states of consciousness. They highly valued the positive potential of such states.

We must move toward a realization of the truth at the core of our being and toward the higher consciousness that is the birthright of all of us.

You cannot accept the political or spiritual leadership of anyone you cannot get high with.

According to Freud, our best and highest aspirations are merely symptoms of neurosis. He defines genius as nothing more than sublimated sexual drives, and our subconscious as a sewer inhabited by monsters and vile incestuous desires.

For most people, this discovery is a glorious surprise. Mystics come back raving about higher levels of perceptions where one sees realities a hundred times more beautiful and meaningful than the familiar scripts of normal life.

I hope that religious organizations in this country will begin to understand that highs triggered by drugs may be more relevant to spiritual development than appearances of spirituality on Sunday mornings.

Most people, it seems, who relax and “let go” have the universal experience of discovering a single Reality, a oneness with all things, an identity with God, with the Supreme Being, with the Higher Self, or whatever you wish to call it.

The ability of the drug to connect diverse people in empathic bonds suggested exciting social applications. Once people learned to share others’ perceptions, a higher level of human consciousness might be possible.

The condition of alienation, of being asleep, of being unconscious, of being out of one’s mind, is the condition of the normal man. Society highly values its normal man. It educates children to lose themselves and to become absurd, and thus to be normal.

The current preoccupation with these latter-day mind modifiers ranges from a hedonistic sensuality to a search for the highest of philosophical abstractions, from a tool for deriving scientific data to a sacrament taken to achieve loss of self and union with the All

The esoteric core of the great religious and spiritual traditions could be seen as roadmaps to higher states of consciousness, and some of the most profound material in these traditions became especially clear and meaningful during psychedelic sessions.

The expansion of consciousness is no other than extending our visions to comprehend many levels at once and above all, to grasp those higher levels in which the discords of the lower levels are resolved.

The fact that visionary experiences has always, at all times and everywhere been very highly valued, means that at all times and in all cultures systematic efforts have been made to induce this experience.

The highest point of the experience is a moment of transcendence in which the user passes out of the everyday world into a paradisiacal egoless state in which he believes he has attained some ultimate revelation about the nature of mind and the universe.

The significance of incarnation and resurrection is not that Jesus a human like us but rather that we are gods like him—or at least have the potential to be. This is the secret of all ages and all spiritual traditions. This is the highest mystery.

Thou shalt evolve to a higher state of being and ultimately return to the Godhead which is your very self, your ever-present Divine Condition prior to all conditions, names and forms.

Users often find that they can become absorbed, with a childlike intensity, in nearly anything and that it will seem fresh, interesting, and highly pleasurable—even if it is something they have done many times.

What I learned from Tim (Leary) had nothing to do with drugs but it had everything to do with getting high. His die-hard fascination with the human brain was not about altering it, but about using it to the fullest.

A high dose of LSD in the right circumstances brings you into contact not only with your deep self but with other dimensions—extraterrestrial intelligence, a collective mind, intelligent unity of life, living God, things that they don't understand and can't control and don't want free and available.

ancient and Oriental religions and philosophies—It has become increasingly clear that these systems of belief reflect profound understanding of the human mind and of unusual states of consciousness, embodying knowledge that deals with the most universal aspect of human existence, and thus is highly relevant for all of us.

Blake says the landscapes and the architectures in which they live are highly organized, they are articulated beyond anything which the mortal and perishing sight could possibly imagine, that they were in some sense super-real, they were more real than ordinary reality.

In the midst of our emotional turmoil about the drug problem, many of us fail to notice that most of the authorities who are supported by public funds, quoted extensively in the scientific and lay press, and sought out for advice by policy makers have never themselves experienced highs in association with drugs.

It is clear that psychedelics have the potential to cut through whatever blocks stand between us and higher experiences, magically letting us enjoy, if only temporarily, transcendent states. I hope it is not necessary to belabor the point that this potential is realized if only set and setting support it.

It is highly desirable that each guide possess a broad background especially including knowledge of history, literature, philosophy, mythology, art and religion. Materials from all of these fields and from others, emerge in many of the sessions and the guide must recognize the materials if he is to be of maximum effectiveness.

Jesus was aware of himself as a finished product of the new humanity which is to come—the new humanity which is to inherit the earth, establish the Kingdom, usher in the New Age. His mission and his teaching have at their heart the development of a new and higher state of consciousness on a species-wide basis.

Let's try to bring about a new and glowing synthesis, a new higher consciousness that brings together the East and West, the head and the heart, science and spirituality and knowledge and wisdom. (Knowledge here means what the ego "knows" which isn't wisdom.)

Most of the subjects felt that the psychedelic experience could sometimes supply a guiding vision which provided direction and meaning for one's life thereafter. They mentioned intense emotions such as love, compassion, or empathy, and the recognition that the mind can be and should be highly trained.

The ancient and pre-industrial societies have held non-ordinary states of consciousness in high esteem and used them for a variety of purposes—diagnosing and healing diseases, ritual, spiritual, and religious activity, cultivation of extrasensory perception and artistic inspiration.

Weren't the sixties, in retrospect, a decade of romance, splendor, optimism, idealism, individual courage, high aspirations, aesthetic innovation, spiritual wonder, exploration, and search? Weren't we happier about each other and more optimistic when the high times were rolling? (That was Timothy Leary.)

When the non-ordinary states are opened up to them, even scientifically cautious and highly intelligent people of our own time and culture find these experiences deeply moving and personally meaningful, providing them with dramatic breakthroughs in their beliefs.

While these new territories have not yet been recognized by Western academic psychiatry, they are not, by any means, unknown to humanity. On the contrary, they have been systematically studied and held in high esteem by ancient and pre-industrial cultures since the dawn of human history.

As an educational psychologist, I'm interested in the implications of LSD research for the study of human learning and further human development. Through the LSD experiences I have learned to look at myself and society in a new way. These experiences have been, in effect, an additional higher education for me, equal in impact, effort, knowledge, beauty, and scope to obtaining a doctorate at Stanford.

As knowledge of the existence of mind-expanding plants and chemicals dawned upon the consciousness of Western man, swift reevaluations of our attitudes toward certain so-called "primitive" tribes became necessary. It became apparent that some of these cultures had preserved the key to higher knowledge which the civilized world had relegated to the status of myth.

Harvard—Over 400 "subjects" shared high-dosage psychedelic experiences with the researchers in an atmosphere of aesthetic precision, philosophic inquiry, inner search, self-confident dignity, intellectual openness, philosophic courage and high humor. The historical impact of this "swarm" of influential scholars has not yet been recognized by the still-timid press, popular or scientific. (That was Timothy Leary.)

In spite of our mechanical sophistication we may well be savages, simple brutes quite unaware of the potential within. It is highly likely that coming generations will look back at us and wonder: how could they so childishly play with their simple toys and primitive words and remain ignorant of the speed, power and relational potential within? How could they fail to use the equipment they possessed?

Leary believed that the human race is presently evolving to a higher level of consciousness and a greater spiritual awareness. His research with LSD seemed to bear out the fact that our nervous systems are equipped to receive a vastly greater spectrum of reality than we realized; and once the veils of perception are cleansed, wars, racism, competitiveness and violence will be seen as old, outgrown, pre-human traits.

Our society classifies an intoxicated individual as criminal or noncriminal on the basis of which drug he used to get high. It's like living in an occupied country. I feel like I'm in one of those old movies about Occupied Europe from the 1940's. That is precisely how the majority of pot smokers feel. They are the largest minority group in the country and yet they are living in a weird scenario straight out of the French Underground.

Perceptions of encompassing light, infinite energy, ineffable visions, and incommunicable knowledge are remarkable in their seeming distinction from perceptions of the phenomena of the “natural world.” According to mystics, these experiences are different because they pertain to a higher transcendent reality. What is perceived is said to come from another world, or at least another dimension.

Socrates tells us that there exists an ideal world above and beyond the world of matter. “In this other earth the colors are much purer and much more brilliant than they are down here...The very mountains, the very stones have a richer gloss, a lovelier transparency and intensity of hue. The precious stones of this lower world, our highly prized cornelians, jaspers, emeralds and all the rest, are but tiny fragments of these stones above”.

Spiritual experiences of this kind can occur in individuals of high intellectual caliber and rigorous scientific training, in fact, they are fully compatible with observations accumulated by various branches of modern research. An important illustration of this point, for those who emphasize the scientific world-view, is the recent convergence of quantum-relativistic physics and various mystical traditions.

The experience of cosmic consciousness provides important insights for deepening our understanding of the highest forms of creativity. The literature on creativity is filled with examples of extraordinary artistic, scientific, philosophical, and religious inspiration that came from a transpersonal source and that occurred in non-ordinary states of consciousness.

Up this gradual stairway of Sense, Understanding, Intuition, we mount to that height from which we are able to behold, with some degree of calmness, the infinite fields of intuitive Beauty and Truth, when the screen of the bodily is removed, and the scope of vision belonging to our highest faculty is realized to be immeasurably beyond all that our most rapturous visions ever conceived it.

If the human potential that Jesus demonstrated is understood to be within us, if the capacity to grow to godlike stature is directly experienced by all Christendom as the key to the Kingdom, then Christianity will fulfill its purpose by encouraging people to evolve, to transform themselves, to rise to a higher state. (This means the LSD state of cosmic consciousness. Do phony idiots such as Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson understand that?)

A religion that doesn't produce the ecstatic high becomes secular.

Above the normal life of problems, there exists a second, higher timeless world.

Being high widens perspectives on the physical as well as mental well-being.

Dogs and cats are high all the time.

Ecstasy is something higher or further out than ordinary pleasure, beyond pleasure.

Is affluence mankind's highest goal?

Learn how to guide high-flying internal aircraft.

Mystics call the highest knowledge unknowing.

Patients who have had vivid experiences of this type have tended to value them highly.

Sexual arousal can reach an unusually high degree.

The free-thinking enlightened individual is the highest ideal of humanity.
The highest mystical awareness comes only when there is freedom from the known.
The Infinite One is communing with this illimitable soul of yours to lift it higher.
The lure of higher consciousness had exercised a fascination across the centuries.
The mind's pure Essence is Highest Perfect Wisdom.
The outside world may be experienced in a highly intensified manner.
The spirit is transported high above all the faculties.
The stakes are high, but the prize the ultimate.
There are resources of courage, creativity and higher intelligence in all of us.
There exists a second, higher timeless world, a reality more native to you.
There is no substitute for growth to higher consciousness.
Trust your Higher Self.
We possess higher notions of the spiritual.
When I'm high, I can penetrate into the past, recall memories.
Your mind is seething to heights undreamed of.

I'm high! I'm alive and it's great to be alive and I'm happy and it's great to be happy and I'm high and it's great to be high, and it's great to be alive and happy and high!

I rejoice as if the world were applauding me. Glory, glory in the highest.

He achieved fuller and clearer recognitions of the nature of reality, of man and of his own higher nature.

He mentions the quality of light around him; it made the air seem radiant. All his senses were gratified to the highest degree.

I felt I was ascending and passing into a new dimension, that I was expanding upward as well as outward into an astral plane, a higher sphere of creation.

I felt so blessed to have seen what I felt was this energy of creation at its purest and highest vibration.

Music seemed to awaken a depth in me that I never knew existed. With each note I seemed to soar to higher heights.

The expansion of all visible things had been growing toward its height; it now revealed it and to the fullest extent I apprehended what is meant by the infinity of space.

The glitter of metal and gems were intensified to the highest pitch of what may be called intrinsic significance.

The house was a stone raft floating in a sea of vegetation. It was Eden. Each plant was dancing, laughing, a quiet network of high intensity conversation.

What are ordinarily dismissed as irrelevant details of speech, behavior, appearance and form seemed in some indefinable way to be highly significant.

wood beautifully grained. I was projecting figures into the grain patterns. One could look right through the socially real grain to a higher order of pattern.

You could look into the face of your friend and get this flickering gleam of interlocking rapport that moved this friendship to a higher level.

A dandelion I glanced down at grew two feet high. Everything was magnified. As I strolled, my attention was wholly grasped by a small dewdrop on the grass. It was utterly captivating.

A sensation of well-being and renewed life flowed through me. The world was as if newly created. All my senses vibrated in a condition of highest sensitivity, which persisted for the entire day.

The experience was highly significant. He comprehended “the essential All-Rightness of the universe”. (Ultimately, the universe is good and right no matter how bad things seem to get.)

We felt ourselves get smarter, and looked into each other’s eyes and loved each other for sharing the understanding that was making us both have these good vibes and this good smart thing happening together. It was very strong, very high.

I could feel deeply about other people. We felt connected. The side which had been suppressing emotions did not seem to be the real one. I was in a higher and higher state of exhilaration and awareness. Things people said had hidden meaning. They said things that applied to life. Everything that was real seemed to make sense.

I looked down below as if from a very high place and saw a rough square of pavement which had laid out all of Manhattan in miniature, including people. The proportions, the infinite detail were perfect. The city within the city. We could have swooped down like gods and lifted up the Empire State Building.

Various interesting scenes started unfolding in front of my eyes. The persons participating in these scenes were highly stylized and slightly puppet-like. The general atmosphere was rather amusing and comical, but with a definite undertone of secrecy and mystery. (eyes closed)

I realized, “My God, every single second is really eternity.” I felt I’d dipped into eternity and was experiencing a glimpse of it along with a hint of its vastness. I was blown away by the enormity of these revelations. By now, I was flying so high, I felt I was in an exalted state, that I was having a mystical experience of the highest order, something I always dreamed of.

The acid took me directly to my lucid, “higher self.” It was as though I’d arrived at my true nature: sincere, clean of purpose, and more useful and wonderful than I’d ever felt in my life. I can’t fathom what it was that made me feel so “perfect” and “enlightened” or what specific obstacle the chemical had overcome to enable me to feel so wholesomely fabulous. I felt a sweeping reassurance that everything was all right after all.

The night was all joyous discoveries, many of which brought me almost to the point of tears, to laughter and astonished wows regularly. Whole new horizons. I felt humbled and honored to be in a room with and listening to such enlightened powers. I felt in flash after flash that I’d never been so high before, never so aware and never—at least not since a long, long half-remembered time ago—so hopeful and happy.

When I realized that I was being born again, that life goes on and on and on, the feeling was overwhelming. I was filled with confidence that it was okay to die, because the consciousness that inhabits the flesh has a higher destiny. It never began and it won’t end.

It just keeps going. Then I was struck with wave after wave of value wisdom, as though the forms behind human spirituality were hitting me for the first time.

All my senses vibrated in a condition of highest sensitivity.

I crawled to the chair which seemed so high off the floor.

I felt buoyed up to a higher spiritual level by some intense mystical force.

I wanted to bring myself closer to the higher sources of life.

I was aware of a higher sphere.

I was elevated to a higher level of existence.

The experience was intense and highly emotional.

The freedom to get high represented for her a victory of the spirit.

They were all high on the magic.

This is what I'd been seeking, communion with a higher reality.

a high state of consciousness in which man finds union with the ultimate reality of the universe a process of purification, the onset of enhanced psychic sensitivity giving access to the hidden and highest potentials of human existence a radical conversion experience, a transformation of self based on a new state of awareness, a new state of consciousness—higher consciousness

a religious experience, though in a highly transcendental, ineffable sense not closely related to institutional religion or a dogmatic, creedal theology a transcendental state of consciousness whose impact is to trigger a release of a universal “inner programming” of higher human potentials can bring spiritual and philosophical understanding of such high level that everything is redefined and appears in a new perspective experiential confrontation with artistic creations of high aesthetic value—visions of beautiful temples, sculptures or paintings (eyes closed) felt that this experience was a stage that everyone would have to go through one way or another in order to reach a higher freeing oneself from distractions that interfere with the perception of higher realisms or more beautiful aspects of existence high souls and brave hearts, which make their throb felt in the giant pulses of a great nation higher levels and states of mind that lead to the realization of one's divine nature and God consciousness highly developed spiritual capacities, with expanded consciousness of the depth and the incomprehensible wonder of being jars one free of mental ruts, allowing old problems to be seen from new angles, accessing higher levels of information, some of which were spiritual in nature other kinds of knowledge, “higher” and more satisfying than the knowledge attained through the abstract, hyper-intellectual process of ordinary science our need for higher intelligence, richer involvement in the cosmic script, further transcendence realization of the higher intelligence, the divinity, the Ground of Being—the ground which is the source of all Becoming that ancient current of passionate hope and risky belief that humanity can evolve into a higher wisdom that each “thing-event” involves every other and that the highest insight is simply the perception of them in their natural “suchness” that highly emotionally charged memories can be imprinted in the genetic code and transmitted through centuries to future generations the highest beautitude to which life can attain and yet, simultaneously, the root and ground of one’s being the purest of soul-reaching, high-classic, rock-concert music, the sound of the miraculous space between eternity—between paradise

the right to achieve euphoria, the right to get “high”, the right to experience new sensations, the right to expand and change one’s consciousness

the spiritual state of no-game, no-ego, the ultimate liberation and the very highest forms of maturity the very highest form of Bliss, wherein he achieved the state of total identification with all of reality the view of the world, not as it ordinarily appears but as it really is, when seen by human consciousness at its greatest height and intensity these gleams and flashes of the highest awareness and hence, also of the “highest mode of existence” to take them higher, to a new realm, to a psychic state they’d never experienced before, a new land of intensity and passion a deep unconscious association between oceanic ecstasy and the experiences of natural beauty, inspired artistic creations, spiritual feelings and highly satisfactory human relationships a long, slow form of sexual intercourse wherein the couple remain joined for an hour or more with very little motion, keeping the preorgasmic tension as high as possible without aiming at the release of climax activities of those circuits of the brain that lead to philosophic inquiry, scientific curiosity, somatic awareness, hedonistic lifestyle, humorous detachment, high-altitude tolerant perceptions, chaotic erotics, ecological sensitivity, utopian communality psychedelic art—trying to express something in a non-conceptual highly figurative and often emotive way, through symbols which may themselves be magical, the power to turn us on the five senses disembodied, all of them keyed to the height of sensitivity and awareness, all of them blending into one another most strangely, until the person, utterly passive, becomes a pure receptor, infinitely delicate, of sensations a breathtaking exhilarating high a glimpse of a higher order of reality a glimpse of the higher reality
