

Insights, Revelations, Awakening, Enlightenment, Illumination, Deliverance

A harmonious inner awakening is characterized by a sense of joy and mental illumination that brings with it an insight into the meaning and purpose of life.

A healthy society provides and protects the sacredness of the teen-age psychedelic voyage. A sick, static society fears and forbids the revelation.

A man “comes to himself,” wakes up from the egocentric daydream when he realizes Who he is.

Although the experiences have been fulfilling in hundreds of ways, by far the most meaningful have been the religious insights and feelings of spirituality.

Artistic and scientific insight requires a touch of the same kind of loose thinking or craziness that is found in altered states of consciousness.

Buddhists set up a whole social structure centered on the cultivation of enlightenment and higher consciousness.

Consciousness awakens to its original condition and suchness, which is also the suchness of all existence.

Creative vision and mystical illumination are a function of the cortex when it is temporarily relieved of word and ego games.

Dr. Suzuki has defined spiritual insight or enlightenment as “becoming conscious of the Unconscious.”

Ecstasy is the sensation of surrendering to vibrations and sometimes to insights that take you out of your so-called self.

Enlightenment comes when the individual self realizes it has no separate identity beyond this Absolute.

Enlightenment is based on an ecstatic moment of realization which is supposed to imbue all life thereafter with a certain grace.

Every kind of typically religious emotion, symbol, and insight appears during psychedelic drug trips.

Experiential identification with inorganic matter is often accompanied by fascinating insights of a philosophical, mythological, religious and mystical nature.

Extremely valuable insights may enable the subject to revise his thinking and self-image and to alter his behavior in desirable ways.

Faith is the first step. Then comes illumination and with it certainty and then emancipation.

For those who have lived a lifetime of conformity and spiritual neglect, freedom is impossible, that is, short of mystical revelation.

God is divided in play, in make-believe, but remains undivided in reality, so that when the play comes to an end, the individualized consciousness awakens to find itself divine.

He (Leary) knew how important it was to have a warm supporting setting to experience the ego-shattering revelations of the mushroom.

He said that a few LSD sessions had given him more insight into his personality than the whole of four years in analysis.

How can we preserve the freshness, illuminate each second of subsequent life? How can we maintain the ecstatic oneness with others? (This refers to when the trip is over.)

I find this world to be beautiful and if I can retain the insights I am getting, there will be some fundamental change in my whole being.

I've seen this quality of childlikeness, this enlightened quality in him (comment about Timothy Leary), Immortality is participation in the eternal now of the divine Ground; survival is persistence in one of the forms of time. Immortality is the result of total deliverance.

In addition to being instruments of philosophic revelation, mystical unity and evolutionary insight, psychedelic drugs are very powerful aphrodisiacs.

In this state of knowledge of God, the mind is enlightened from out of the depths of divine wisdom which defy our scrutiny.

Insightful knowledge or illumination about being or existence in general that is felt at an intuitive, nonrational level and gained by direct experience.

Insights are accepted without reservations and seem much more valid than under nondrug conditions. (The insane ego is gone.)

Insights are accompanied by an emotion which reinforces the conviction that a fragment of Truth has been discovered. We call this kind of learning "revelation."

It is a special kind of enlightenment to have this feeling that the usual, the way things are, is odd, this feeling of universal oddity.

It is easier to change behavior if you understand the learned-game nature of behavior. This sort of insight can be brought about by consciousness-expanding drugs.

It would appear that everybody who experiences these levels develop convincing insights into the utmost relevance of the spiritual dimension in the universal scheme of things.

Liberation might be defined as the process of waking up out of the nonsense, nightmares and illusory pleasures of what is ordinarily called real life, into the awareness of eternity.

Looking back on my own experiences, they all converge toward a kind of insight to which I cannot help ascribing some metaphysical significance.

LSD could shake people out of the rut of ordinary perception and catalyze some sort of revelation.

LSD encapsulates an enormous amount of experience into a relatively short period. Insights that might normally take years to acquire can burst forth in an awesome flurry.

LSD provides unrivaled insights into the dynamics of emotional disorders and the functioning of the human mind in general.

LSD shows me the real Reality. It is the final enlightenment. The insights I gain are true. (That's right and don't ever listen to anyone who doesn't understand that.)

LSD stimulates an easy recall of events long buried in a patient's subconscious and striking insights into his own nature and the real world around him.

Magnificent revelations, both spiritual and philosophical can occur marking the highest union of experience and intellect.

Many are able to apply various insights from their psychedelic sessions in a creative way in their professional lives.

Many LSD subjects reported unusual aesthetic experiences and insights into the nature of the creative process; they frequently developed a new understanding of art.

Many people who embark on a journey of self-exploration develop the insight that our inner dimensions are bountiful and endless.

Now the chemical messiah has come which has the ability to awaken this sleeping realization of mind potential in even the most skeptical.

Often one is struck with the familiarity of the revelation, as though he is now revisiting an inherent buried truth, having "been there before" at some indefinite time in the past.

On the level of ultimate unity, consciousness totally awakens to its original condition, which is also the suchness of all of existence.

On the threshold of the most profound and ultimate depths, we are faced with the revelation that our experience is contained within the depths of the Divine Life itself.

Once the threshold of altered consciousness has been crossed, we are flooded with a kaleidoscopic vision of extended perceptual fields and psychological insights.

One could look at a pebble for days, and in a sufficiently enlightened state of mind, there would always be more to be learned.

One must have a genuine curiosity about new direction of personal growth and the fabric of psychedelic insight and discovery. There should be dedication of purpose.

Organized religion has very little to do with the non-verbal education of individuals for spiritual insight.

Release of unconscious materials frequently occurs. Insight is added to insight. At last I am seeing the world without self-deceit or illusion.

Religion is in its truest sense an instrument for awakening us to the revolutionary process of growth to godhood.

Since earliest times, man has felt impulses to rise above his everyday self and achieve either some higher insight or some release from mundane concerns—or both.

So astonishing will be this new insight that he may be absolutely overwhelmed and in his excitement, laugh and cry at the same time.

Sometimes they acquire new insights and intricate knowledge about the life process from sources within them that are not ordinarily available.

Spiritual insights accompanying the psychedelic experience might be subjective accounts of the objective findings of astronomy, physics, biochemistry and neurology.

Spirituality is a legitimate dimension of existence and its awakening and development are desirable.

Such insight is intuitively felt to be of a more fundamental form of reality than the phenomena of everyday consciousness.

The aim of all Eastern religion, like the aim of LSD, is basically to get high, that is, to expand your consciousness and find ecstasy and revelation within.

The blinders are removed and the individual glimpses the nature of the process. This revelation comes through a biochemical change in the body.

The cause of pain and evil is craving for separative ego-centered existence with its corollary that there can be no deliverance from evil except by getting rid of such craving.

The changes of consciousness have ontological relevance through offering valid insights into the nature of human existence and the universe.

The early experimentation with LSD brought important new insights into the nature of the creative process.

The experiences they produce are of an infinite variety. They might be aesthetic, psychological, philosophical insights or emotional releases.

The images may enter into consciousness as supremely meaningful, illuminating the most important areas of the subject's life. (eyes closed)

The insights psychedelics potentiate frequently enable one to see through the myriad pretensions and deceptions which make up the mythology of the Social Lie.

The insights that have been achieved by LSD experimentation are of lasting value and relevance.

The keynote of the experience is the tremendous exciting sense of an intense metaphysical illumination.

The liberated or awakened man is free from the confusion of conventional entities with reality.

The LSD experience is felt by almost everyone who undergoes it to be profoundly significant and enlightening.

The LSD revelation is the clear perspective. The LSD panic is the terror that ego is lost forever.

The LSD session helped them gain deep insights into the world of painters, empathize with them and understand their art.

The man in whom this Self is realized is the Awake, the true man of no rank. (He is above or beyond all classifications.)

The mind grows clearer, more luminous, more peaceful, insight becomes more penetrating.

The mirror image has provided insights resulting in amelioration or resolution of long-standing problems.

The moment of revelation when you're turned on to the whole process, which men of old called the mystic, is the purpose of life.

The most important scientific insights or intuitions come precisely through the somewhat reluctant use of a nonthinking mode of awareness.

The most valuable insights come from questioning the most obvious forms of common sense.

The motives for hasheesh-indulgence were of the more exalted ideal nature, for of this nature are all its ecstasies and its revelations.

The power of psychedelics to evoke evolutionary archetypes awakened many women to the goddess within.

The psychedelic drugs produce insights into some of the absurdities within the individual and also within the social structure in which he is embedded.

The psychedelic experience can also become a source of revelatory, aesthetic, philosophical or spiritual insight.

The psychedelic state is an immensely powerful one for obtaining insight and understanding through visual symbolism.

The realm of insights or problem solutions is in any area which is meaningful to that individual be it social or personal, intellectual, religious, philosophical, things like that.

The religious systems of the world have been built up, in the main, by men and women who were not completely selfless or enlightened.

The spiritual insights accompanying the psychedelic experience might be subjective accounts of the objective findings of astronomy, physics, biochemistry and neurology.

The subject in this state feels that he has access to direct insightful knowledge and wisdom about matters of fundamental and universal significance.

The visionary revelation answers the escape question. There is no death. Ecstatic, mirthful relief.

This most intimate of relationships of the self with another (sex) would naturally become one of the chief spheres of spiritual insight and growth.

Through music, I am aware of an occasional surge of inspiration and insight that has become a dynamic element in whatever creativity I may possess.

Traditionally it was said that the devil, the embodiment of evil, opposes everything we do towards enlightenment or tries to block our approach to the realm of Spirit, Self and God.

Useful analytical knowledge about the world is replaced by some kind of biologically inessential but spiritually enlightening acquaintance with the world as beauty.

Visiting new realms within yourself, you are suddenly imbued with creative ideas and new insights and find that your potential seems limitless.

Wake up! You are God! You have the Divine plan engraved in cellular script within you. You'll be reborn.

We must wake up and realize we know little. There is much more and the mystery is beautiful.

We now have the means of providing the enlightenment to any prepared volunteer. (That was Timothy Leary in the 1960's.)

We were seeking a clearer, purer realm. A realm of unbounded joy. The realm of enlightenment. The pure land. Buddhahood.

When the ego is dispelled, there is insight, the perception of a whole new pattern of relationship comparable to scientific or artistic discovery.

Whether one is enlightened or ignorant, there is in reality no escape from the Supreme Identity.

While one is under the drug, one has penetrating insights into the people around one and also into one's own life.

Words are uttered, but fail to enlighten. The things and events to which symbols refer belong to mutually exclusive realms of experience.

You are going to face the blazing illumination of the divinity. It's going to change you completely. You're never going to be the same. Do you want to do it?

A visionary will recognize the possibility of discovering from mind, in some of its extraordinary awakened states, a truth, or a collection of truths, which do not become manifest in his every-day condition.

Any point from which one sees the one-ness is a center. That one point of vision is the eye of God, seeing, glorifying, understanding the whole. One such moment of revelation is the only purpose of life.

Awakening almost necessarily involves a sense of relief because it brings to an end the habitual psychological cramp of trying to grasp the mind with the mind, which in turn generates the ego with all its conflicts and defenses.

Because of their clarity and vividness, transcendent states frequently feel more real than "ordinary" reality; people often compare the discovery of these realms to awakening from a dream, removing opaque veils, or opening the doors of perception.

Closed-eye fantasies in this world seem sometimes to be revelations of the secret workings of the brain, of the associative and patterning process, the ordering systems which carry out all our sensing and thinking.

Current psychopharmacology is a superstitious form of black magic sponsored and supported by the federal Food and Drug Administration, a government agency about as enlightened as the Spanish Inquisition. (That was Timothy Leary.)

Enlightenment is the ego's ultimate disappointment. (That's because enlightenment means that it's all over for the ego, the ego being exposed for the fraud that it always was.)

For many people, one or two psychedelic experiences can accomplish the goals of a long and successful psychotherapy, a deep understanding and game-free collaboration between participants, plus insights.

Hallucinogenic drugs give people who lack their gift of spontaneous perception the potential to experience this extraordinary state of consciousness and thereby to attain insight into the spiritual world.

He is, as it were, embarked upon a voyage of discovery which is only completed by his return to the normal world, to which he comes back with insights different from those of the inhabitants who never embarked on such a voyage.

I can gain insight into the nature of consciousness or experience, the meaning and essence of being and the experience of harmony, the mystery of life, communion and sharing, the delight of ecstasy. (Anyone can gain that insight. LSD is the best way.)

"I have no peace of mind. Please pacify my mind." "Bring out your mind here before me and I will pacify it." "But, when I seek my own mind, I can't find it." "There, I have pacified your mind." At that moment, he had his awakening.

I have used the symbolic expression "awakening" because it clearly suggests the becoming aware of a new area of experience, the opening of hitherto closed eyes to an inner reality previously unknown.

Ideation, images, body sensation and emotion are fused in what is felt as an absolutely purposive process culminating in a sense of total understanding, self-transformation, religious enlightenment and possibly mystical union.

In such states, the subject has a revelation of the significance and interrelationships of many dimensions of life; he becomes aware of many levels of meaning simultaneously and "understands" the totality of existence.

In this type of experience, the subject has the feeling of encountering the Creator of the universe or even of full identification with him. This can be accompanied by extraordinary insights into the process of creation.

It opens access to most extraordinary realms of experience, offers remarkable philosophical and spiritual revelations and mediates fascinating insights into the cosmic processes by which reality itself is created.

It seems that everyone who experientially reaches these levels also develop convincing insights into the total relevance of the spiritual dimension to the universal scheme of things.

It's an ecstatic experience of Nature and Process which leaves the subject with a sense of having acquired important insight into, as well as identity with, the fundamental nature and structure of the universe.

Jesus called people to awaken, to repent. (To repent doesn't mean asking forgiveness for "sins". To repent is to awaken to cosmic consciousness. Yes, Jesus was talking about the equivalent of LSD consciousness.)

Like sensitivity to beauty, the capacity to encounter the Holy seems to reside within every human soul. Too often, it may sleep there eternally, but it is ready to be awakened by the right combination of circumstances.

LSD subjects sophisticated in mathematics and physics have repeatedly reported that in their psychedelic sessions they gained illuminating insights into a variety of concepts and constructs that are not imaginable and visualizable in the ordinary state of consciousness.

Mathematicians and physicists reported remarkable experiential insights into various problems related to astronomy and astrophysics that can be expressed in mathematical equations, but cannot be fully intuited in the ordinary state of consciousness.

New insights into a new, transfigured world of givenness, new combinations of thought and fantasy—the stream of novelty pours through the world in a torrent, whose every drop is charged with meaning.

No one who has studied the matter closely doubts the reality of psychedelic peak experiences, the capacity of psychedelic drugs to open up the unconscious, or the conviction of some who take them that they are gaining insight.

Only in the light of these revelations of what each human being is capable of becoming, ought to become and is ultimately destined to become, can we fully and clearly understand what in fact we are.

Perhaps all men share the hunch that normal consciousness is a form of sleepwalking and that somewhere there exists a form of "awakeness" from which one would not want to return.

Pleasure, like mystical insight itself, must always come unsought. Pleasure cannot be given unless the senses are in a state of accepting rather than taking. Pleasure as ordinarily pursued is never a true fulfillment.

Raptures about "transcendental experiences" often focus on the visual splendors and lofty insights into the meaning of existence and the universe and the increase in aesthetic sensitivity.

Sometimes the "doors of perception" are cleansed suddenly with a jolt; sometimes the cleansing comes gradually with ever increasing discoveries. These discoveries may be psychological insights or may be made through any of the senses.

Subjects had not only past-incarnation experiences but also complex and detailed insights into this area that were strikingly similar to those described in various religious and occult scriptures.

The educational topics, philosophical issues, intellectual questions, and personal insights which evolved from my LSD experiences and subsequent investigations are a continuing source of growth.

The enlightened individual goes beyond grammar. He has what may be called a “grammar-transcending experience” which permits him to live in the consciousness of the divine continuum of the world and to see the one continually manifest in the many.

The enlightened person is, so to speak, after the rise of language; he lives in language and then goes beyond it. But what sort of world is there before language is introduced? What sort of world is the world of immediate non-verbalized experience?

The experiential insights from unusual states of consciousness suggest the existence of intangible and unfathomable creative intelligence aware of itself that permeates all realms of reality.

The highest point of the experience is a moment of transcendence in which the user passes out of the everyday world into a paradisiacal egoless state in which he believes he has attained some ultimate revelation about the nature of mind and the universe.

The illegality of cannabis is outrageous, an impediment to full utilization of a drug which helps produce the serenity and insight, sensitivity and fellowship so desperately needed in this increasingly mad and dangerous world.

The LSD experience is a confrontation with new forms of wisdom and energy that dwarf and humiliate man’s mind. This experience of awe and revelation is often described as religious.

The psychedelic drug doesn’t mean doctor-disease, dope fiend-crime or instant insanity but ecstasy, sensual unfolding, religious experience, revelation, illumination, contact with nature.

The psychedelic experience at its best embodies a mythic substantiation of the universe that is frequently overpowering in its revelations. It is a world of myth and ritual, a never-never land of infinite grace and goodness.

The subject knows with perfect conviction that he will in the future respond in terms of the new insights and new orientation instead of making the old, painful and non-productive responses he has made in the past.

The unusual states of consciousness induced by LSD can generate important insights, facilitate problem-solving and lead to valid intuitions or unexpected resynthesis of accumulated data.

There are many reports of patients receiving meaningful insight about themselves in an LSD experience without the intervention, participation or even the presence of a therapist.

There is evidence that the spiritual insights accompanying the psychedelic experience might be subjective accounts of the objective findings of astronomy, physics, biochemistry and neurology.

These states of mind can be extremely beneficial, often leading to physical and emotional healing, profound insights, creative activity and permanent personality changes for the better.

This universal tradition of the eternal moment always carries the implications that there is some very special and splendid insight to be discovered in a kind of concentration upon the immediate moment.

We are liberated and enlightened by perceiving the hitherto unexperienced good that is already within us, by returning to our eternal Ground and remaining where, without knowing it, we have always been.

We came to believe, as a result of our own experiences and those reported to us by others using psychedelics, that they had the potential to facilitate for the individual the experience of major insights and problem solutions of an intellectual-emotional nature.

We cannot just talk about spirituality; it needs to be an experiential realization. Enlightenment does not come simply from following the wisdom teachings. It comes through direct experience.

While at the cradle of all great religions are the direct visionary revelations of their founders, prophets, and saints, in many instances a religion loses its connection with this vital core over time.

You can't fulfill the hero's journey if you insist on your comfort and safety. You may have to risk your life if you seek incomparable enlightenment. (It can be a rocky ride, but you are not really risking your life, though it can seem like that, especially for the ego.)

An important characteristic of collective and racial memories is the fact that the subject experiences them as insights into the diversity of cultural groups within the human race, illustrations of the history of mankind or manifestations of the cosmic drama and divine play. (eyes closed)

Drug experiences, like all novel experiences, can provide themes and material for the artists' imagination to work on. And it has also been suggested that psychedelic drug experiences can subtly affect the faculty of insight, providing original solutions to artistic and intellectual problems through new combinations of ideas and feelings.

Enlightenment remains unrealized so long as it is considered as a specific state to be attained and for which there are tests and standards of success. It is much rather freedom to be the failure that one is. This freedom is the basis of all mental and spiritual wholeness, provided that it seeks no result.

Evolutionary memories have specific experiential characteristics; they are distinctly different from human experiences and often seem to transcend the scope and limits of human fantasy and imagination. The individual can have, for example, an illuminating insight into what it feels like when a snake is hungry, when a turtle is sexually excited.

If certain conditions are fulfilled, human beings may cease to behave as the pathetic or deplorable creatures they mistakenly think they are and be what in fact they always have been, if they had only given themselves a chance of knowing it—enlightened, liberated, “godded in God”.

It is a complex revelatory insight into the essence of being and existence. This insight is typically accompanied by feelings of certainty that such knowledge is ultimately more real and relevant than our concepts and perceptions regarding the world that we share in a usual state of consciousness.

It should be one of the chief tasks of the guide to help the subject select out of the wealth of phenomena among which he finds himself, some of the more promising opportunities for heightened insight, awareness and integral understanding that the guide knows to be available in the psychedelic experience.

Let's come on as psychologists and develop a research project that aims at producing the ecstatic moment. Develop a science of ecstasies. Train graduate students to illuminate themselves and others. We have statisticians who systemize the static—how about ecstatisticians who systemize the ecstatic?

Most of the awe and reverent wonder stems from this confrontation with an unsuspected range of consciousness, the tremendous acceleration of images, the shattering insight into the narrowness of the learned as opposed to the potentiality of awareness, the humbling sense of where one's ego is in relationship to the total energy field.

Organized religion had little to offer. Faith in an invisible divinity was not enough. What LSD promised was the direct, unmediated experience of self-transcendence—the mystical enlightenment where we KNOW what the philosophers and the prophets talk about.

Our true nature is an aspect of a universal consciousness, Self, Being, Mind, of God. The awakening to this true nature is the direct awareness that you are more than this puny body or limited mind. It is the realization that the universe is not external to you. It is experiencing the universe as yourself.

Spiritual awakening is the difficult process whereby the increasing realization that everything is as wrong as it can be flips suddenly into the realization that everything is as right as it can be. (Alan Watts wrote that. With LSD, it's not a difficult process at all, except for the ego.)

The aim of the psychiatrist is to teach the (statistically) abnormal to adjust themselves to the behavior of the (statistically) normal. The aim of the educator in spiritual insight is to teach the (statistically) normal that they are in fact insane and should do something about it. (That was Aldous Huxley.)

The best researchers, when confronting problems and riddles that had defied all solution by ordinary methods, did employ their minds in an unusual way, did put themselves into a state of egoless "creativity" which permitted them to have insights so remarkable that by means of these they were able to make their greatest and most original discoveries.

The Christian message is essentially a call to be universal—a call to become cosmically conscious. It is a call to place God at the center of ourselves, not through blind faith but through insightful awareness, not through rigid adherence to ritual and dogma but through graceful expression of cosmic principles. It is a call to "be as Gods."

The fates of nations and the lives of billions of people have been profoundly affected by the divine illuminations of spiritual prophets. We have only to remember the revelations of Buddha under the Bo tree, Moses on Mount Sinai, Jesus in the desert, Paul on the road to Damascus, and Mohammed during his visionary night journey for evidence of this.

The person is at one with the universe. In his mystic selflessness he awakens with a feeling of rebirth, often physically felt and he is provided with a new beginning, a new sense of values. He becomes aware of the richness of the unconscious at his disposal; the energies bound up in and by repression become available to him.

The prime characteristic of cosmic consciousness is a consciousness of the cosmos, that is, of the life and order of the universe. Along with the consciousness of the cosmos there occurs an intellectual enlightenment which alone would place the individual on a new plane of existence, would make him almost a member of a new species.

The reports of LSD subjects who have experienced episodes of embryonic existence, the moment of conception and episodes of cellular, tissue and organ consciousness abound in medically accurate insights into the anatomical, physiological and biochemical aspects of the processes involved.

We overvalue the mind, that flimsy collection of learned words and verbal communications; the mind, that system of paranoid delusions with the learned self as center. And we eschew the nonmind, nongame intuitive insight outlook which is the key to the religious experience, to the love experience.

What's the difference between being totally enlightened and being totally insane? The only difference is who has possession of the body you leave behind. (When tripping, you must have someone with you to make sure your body doesn't do something you'll be sorry about when you come down.)

Almost all of us are still robots controlled by conditioning. We think we are conscious, but we aren't. We are asleep, hypnotized, sleep-walking—the metaphors vary, but they all mean that we can't see outside our conditioned reality-tunnel. When we begin to awaken, we perceive the world is nothing at all like the myths and superstitions our society has imposed on us.

Altered states of consciousness enrich man's experiences in many areas of life. The intense aesthetic experience gained while absorbed in some majestic scene, a work of art, or music may broaden man's subjective experiences and serve as a source of creative inspiration. There are also numerous instances of sudden illumination, creative insights, and problem solving occurring while man has lapsed into altered states of consciousness.

As in the case of other transpersonal experiences, episodes of organ, tissue and cellular consciousness can be associated with many concrete insights; various details concerning anatomy, histology, physiology and chemistry of the body found in the accounts of such experiences often reveal a level of information that the subjects did not have before the sessions.

Christianity and even Protestant Christianity has remained, willy-nilly, the most authoritarian and bigoted of all world religions. He who attempts to question or modify any of its dogmas quickly gets into very hot water in any Christian country. There has been one "revelation" and it is enough. He who has new ideas is probably inspired by the Devil or has been out in the woods taking strange drugs with the witch women.

Elements of plant consciousness can be accompanied by philosophical and spiritual ideation and insights. Several subjects, for example, have pondered over the purity and unselfishness of plant existence and have seen plant life as a model for ideal human conduct; unlike animals and man, most plants do not kill and do not live at the expense of other organisms.

LSD subjects often consider the possibility that consciousness is a basic cosmic phenomenon related to the organization of energy and that it exists throughout the universe; in this context, human consciousness appears to be only one of its many varieties and outgrowths. Episodes of consciousness of inorganic matter can be accompanied by various insights of a philosophical and religious relevance.

Mystical insight is no more in the chemical itself than biological knowledge is in the microscope. There is no difference in principle between sharpening perception with an external instrument, such as the microscope and sharpening it with an internal instrument, such as one of these drugs. If they are an affront to the dignity of the mind, the microscope is an affront to the dignity of the eye.

Opposing terms like psychosis vs. revelation, hallucination vs. vision, regression vs. mystical insight, and sensory distortion vs. sensory enhancement embodied two different attitudes toward the experience and even suggested two different world views. Psychedelic drug users thought that the words of psychiatry and medicine were being used as a weapon against them.

Psychedelic drugs released new forces into the consciousness of millions of people. These forces might be seen as good, evil, or morally ambiguous; they might be regarded as coming from within, as an upsurge from the unconscious mind, or from beyond, as a revelation from other planes of existence; or some way to reconcile these interpretations might be sought.

Some individuals are genetically templated to live part of their time in the future. They're alienated from current realities. Sometimes they feel agonizingly out of step with the "nomads" around them. Frequently, they are locked away for having visions. It helps when mutants can recognize themselves. Then, they can view it all with humorous insight.

The experience of cosmic consciousness provides important insights for deepening our understanding of the highest forms of creativity. The literature on creativity is filled with examples of extraordinary artistic, scientific, philosophical, and religious inspiration that came from a transpersonal source and that occurred in non-ordinary states of consciousness.

The global popularity of chemical mind-changers is due to their producing ecstasy, perception change, fresh sensation. Ecstasy means to break out of the verbal prisons, suspend your imprints, see things anew, perceive directly. With freshened perception goes the feeling of liberation, insight, the exultant sense of having escaped the lifeless net of symbols.

The individual is flooded by light of supernatural beauty and experiences a state of divine epiphany. He or she has a deep sense of emotional, intellectual and spiritual liberation and gains access to breathtaking realms of cosmic inspiration and insight. This type of experience is clearly responsible for great achievements in the history of humanity in the area of science, art, religion and philosophy.

We forgot that for thousands of years the psychedelic vision has been the rite of passage of the teen-ager—the Dakota Indian boy who sits on the mountaintop fasting and sleepless, waiting for the revelation. The threshold of adult game life is the ancient and natural time for the rebirth experience, the flip-out trip from which you come back as a man.

George used to tell me about the visions and insights and perceptual fireworks. I used to listen politely but not caring. I had no concepts, no mental hooks on which to hang his words and no intuitive electricity to get turned-on. Like every educated savage, I automatically discredited anything that I didn't understand. Now it was different. The visionary flash had come. (That was Timothy Leary looking back to before he tried psychedelics.)

The richness of the experiential content is augmented by the fact that the process involves an endless variety of illustrative material from biology, zoology, anthropology, history, mythology and religion. Psychedelic sessions focusing on the death-rebirth process not only have great therapeutic potential, but are a source of invaluable scientific, sociopolitical, philosophical and spiritual insights. (That material is seen with the eyes closed.)

After insight comes the deeper question as to the meaning of life.
All scientific revolutions have had this quality of being revelations.
Clear perception of the limitations of the ego will awaken you to the Self.
Composers given the drug discovered that they had greater insight into music.
Deep insights of a personal, social and philosophic nature take place.
Enlightenment, as a goal of the spiritual path, is partly a result of awakening vision.
Enlightenment, as distinct from doctrine, is alive.
Enlightenment awaits you.
Enlightenment is the discovery of our own true nature.
Enlightenment or awakening is the recognition of what always is.
Every insight has degrees of intensity.
Feelings with overtones of metaphysical insight arise.
Great beings of every tradition had their inner energy awakened.
His experience had brought first deliverance and then meaning into his life.
I shall wake up and recollect the infinite joy.
Individuals gain profound insights into the nature of religion.
Insight, when clear enough, persists.
Insights are retained after the drug has worn off.
Insights flash into awareness.
Insights of the unfathomable abound.
It dissolves internal barriers to feeling and insight.
It is a certain comprehensive insight into the essence of existence.
It is an illuminating insight into the very essence of existence.
It's time to wake up. It's time to really use our heads.
Liberation is called awakening because it is a release from social hypnosis.
LSD would awaken appetite for spiritual meaning.
Man wakes up from his egotistical daydream and discovers himself.
Many insights carry over after the drug effects have worn off.
Most of human history is still a nightmare from which we are seeking to awake.
Mystical insight is fresh and deep.
New illuminations and revelations from the collective unconscious arise.

Our insight into the divine plan becomes more awe-fully detailed.
People have awakened to the reality of the spirit.
People reported “insights” and breakthroughs in emotional blockages.
Salvation, liberation or enlightenment is possible for us at every moment.
Spiritual insight reveals a mystery and magic.
Such experiences may enrich and illuminate theological concepts.
The answer lies in nothing less than species-wide enlightenment.
The enlightened ones in any religion have pointed to the god within.
The essence of the authentic mystical experience is insight.
The essential insights are universal.
The experience can be wonderful, insightful, enlightening and life-changing.
The experience of awakening is timeless and universal.
The experience of the organism/environment field is a revelation.
The experience was so tremendously blissful and enlightening.
The free-thinking enlightened individual is the highest ideal of humanity.
The great Awakening is found in the interval between two thoughts.
The human psyche is filled with wonderful potentials waiting to be awakened and used.
The individual is illuminated by the eternal.
The inmost Self awakens from its dream.
The insight of LSD leads you to concern yourself more with internal or spiritual values.
The LSD experience is a revelation of something outside of time and the social order.
The LSD session is an overwhelming awakening of experience.
The ocean is an environment in which the awareness of our roots can awaken.
The perception of the infinite in a finite particular is a revelation of divine immanence.
The sensory manifestations of awakening can be very rich and varied.
The spiritual awakening amounts to a real resolution.
The world is intelligible only as a revelation of the mind of God.
They have acquired new and profound insight.
To awaken really means to see what is true.
To seek enlightenment in words is like expecting the sight of a menu to satisfy hunger.
Total deliverance comes only through unitive knowledge.
Transcendence of mind makes possible new realms of insight.
Tremendous insights are just delivered to you.
True insight takes me beyond the intellect.
Unforgettable revelations about the nature of reality occur.
We awaken to the vision of unity consciousness.
When the game has run its course, the Self awakens to its original identity.
Your enjoyment of the world is never right until every morning, you awake in heaven.
You wake from the delusion of separate form and hook up to the cosmic dance.
He came to the realization of the Self which is the enlightenment of the darkness that is ignorance and the deliverance from the mortal consequences of that ignorance.
He found the whole experience exhilarating for having given him insights into his psyche and the nature of existence that he hadn’t thought himself capable of achieving.
He reported a “continuous stream of penetrating insights and deepened philosophical understanding.”

He was fascinated by the dimensions of the experience and by the richness of insights that it entailed.

I awakened into a brilliant, overwhelmingly glorious light. It was very brief but I'd never experienced anything like it in my life. It had quite an impact.

I had reached a state of "wakefulness" when the brilliance of light on a window sill or the colors of blue in the sky would be so important it could make me cry.

I thought how trivial and absurd the things were that tied me to my conventional existence. I had such great insight into the nature of things.

I was getting insights as to why the child's psyche is so fascinated and captivated by various mythic stories and their characters.

I was in a daze, stunned by what had happened, trying to figure out what to do with these revelations, what to do with life.

I was struck with a new sense of possibility, that I could be awakened to dozens of wondrous phenomena.

In that illuminated state, I felt completely boundless and free, surrounded and filled with brilliant light and washed by an enormous sense of peace.

It reveals the soul. My own experience under LSD was the revelation of my soul to me. There can be no deeper experience, or more profound revelation.

It was with this insight that I was born into a new world. A new form of consciousness had taken over.

Music seemed to awaken a depth in me that I never knew existed. With each note I seemed to soar to higher heights.

She felt enormous gratitude for her experience and the cosmic insights; she saw them as a special grace and privilege.

The drugs produced sudden insight that one has been living in a narrow space-time-self context.

The revelation had come. The veil had been pulled back. The classic vision. The fullblown conversion experience. The prophetic call. The works. God had spoken.

There came upon me a sense of exultation, of immense joyousness accompanied or immediately followed by an intellectual illumination impossible to describe.

They apprehended real truths, common to all our humanity, and needing but some instrument of intense insight to bring them forth.

Whenever I'd taken LSD, I'd always sought a revelation of the sacred. Now I was in the midst of one. It was a great honor, a blessing, and I felt very humble.

Einstein discovered the basic principles of his special theory of relativity in an unusual state of mind; according to his description, most of the insights came to him in the form of kinaesthetic sensations.

His emotional state was one of “tranquility, a quiet kind of happiness and a security coming from the knowledge of having accomplished something enormously worthwhile, of having made some very great advances.”

I felt I had now experienced the grace of God. Truly I had been given a gift of infinite worth. I could understand why human beings throughout history have relentlessly pursued truth and sought enlightenment.

I had traveled through all that immeasurable chain of dreams in 30 seconds. “My God!” I cried, “I am in eternity.” In the presence of that first sublime revelation of the soul’s own time, and her capacity for an infinite life, I stood trembling with breathless awe.

I saw my world shrink to a micro-speck floating in the eternity of the cosmos and I smelled enlightenment and was promised answers to the questions I didn’t even know how to ask.

In several staggered flashes of insight, like flashbulbs popping around a celebrity, I understood the Cartesian mind/body split. I also understood Beauty and Truth and Ultimate Reality. Unfortunately, I lacked the words to explain it.

My own personal drama was no more significant than light playing on a movie screen. Even feelings of joy, ecstasy, and liberation in letting go of attachments were less important than the insight and sense of knowing, or remembering, inexpressible truth.

This revelation was more primordial than an encounter with Freudian guilt or Original Sin. It was as though I’d come face to face with a timeless version of my aboriginal and innately moral self.

I cannot recall whether the revelation came suddenly or gradually; I only remember finding myself in the very midst of those wonderful moments, beholding life for the first time in all its young intoxication of loveliness, in its unspeakable joy, beauty and importance.

I understood that the essence of my being was identical with the timeless essence of every living thing, that formlessness was the essence of form, that the whole universe was reflected in every psyche, and that my separateness was only an illusion, a dream from which I had, in this moment, fully awakened.

I’d given up even trying to talk. I just smiled at everything that was said to me, and nodded my head up and down as the words went by. I felt beautiful and saw nothing but beauty. I was a little child being led and protected by two wise saints. On the perfect path to all-the-way-up now. Awake, finally, and headed for truth.

It was a beautiful feeling, a verification of what I hoped would be the ultimate truth and a hopeful view of creation: Don’t worry about your body or about dying. That’s an illusion. Consciousness cannot die. To me, this was mind-shattering, the ultimate revelation in my life.

A most beautiful sunset was dying in the west, the river was tinged by it, the very zenith clouds were bathed in it, and the world beneath seemed floating in a dream of rosy tranquility. My awakened perceptions drank in this beauty until all sense of fear was banished, and every vein ran flooded with the very wine of delight. Mystery enwrapped me still, but it was the mystery of one who walks in Paradise for the first time.

I experienced a wave of extraordinary bliss, like a full-body orgasm, and the sense I was in the presence of something absolutely awesome. Sex is nothing compared to the ecstasy I felt at that moment. I had no awareness of my body or ego or time, only a profound sensation of illumination and the feeling I was in the presence of ALL That Is, eternity, God, whatever you might call something all-encompassing.

I realized, “My God, every single second is really eternity.” I felt I’d dipped into eternity and was experiencing a glimpse of it along with a hint of its vastness. I was blown away by the enormity of these revelations. By now, I was flying so high, I felt I was in an exalted state, that I was having a mystical experience of the highest order, something I always dreamed of.

It was as though a veil had been stripped away and certain things had become suddenly self-evident. I realized that there was just one force in the universe. There is only one energy and that is consciousness. And there is only one consciousness, one mind, and we are, in fact, one with this, which means we are all one. I felt this was a revelation of the true nature of reality.

Large trees known for their longevity, such as sequoias and redwoods, were experienced in the sessions as representing timeless and centered consciousness uninfluenced by the turmoils and upheavals in the external world. Other insights associated with similar experiences were related to the mystical consciousness and deep religious significance of certain plants.

Now I could hear, as if for the first time, the depth of the wisdom in their teachings and in the mystical doctrines of all ages and all cultures. As I sought for words to express my own ineffable experience I gained a new appreciation for those individuals who had attempted to communicate their own insights in writing or art. I also became interested in understanding intuitive ways of knowing.

The acid took me directly to my lucid, “higher self.” It was as though I’d arrived at my true nature: sincere, clean of purpose, and more useful and wonderful than I’d ever felt in my life. I can’t fathom what it was that made me feel so “perfect” and “enlightened” or what specific obstacle the chemical had overcome to enable me to feel so wholesomely fabulous. I felt a sweeping reassurance that everything was all right after all.

Thoughts spun around in my head and everything—objects, sound, events—took on a special meaning for me. I felt like I was putting the pieces of a puzzle together. Childhood feelings began to come back, as symbols and bits from past conversations went through my head. The word religious and other words from other past conversations came back to me and seemed to take on a new significance. I increasingly began to feel that I was experiencing something like mystical revelations.

A major revelation was of the spiritual nature of trees, the obedient benevolence of trees. Acid awakened something in me like a waiting genius that I knew was there.

All was serenity, ecstasy, revelation.

Every sense organ was preternaturally awakened.

Following this insightful LSD experience, the patient felt “enormously released.”

His “insight” was induced by music.

I had a major revelation that changed my whole life perspective.

I had a sudden awakening to the innermost divinity of all things.
I had awakened from a long ontological sleep.
Insights came to me like comets flashing across the dome of my consciousness.
It had been a real epiphany, a revelation of God.
It was as if parts of my brain “awoke,” which had been dormant.
My interest in altered states had been awakened.
My mind, with a calm power of insight, penetrated into some of its own kingdoms.
Revelation upon revelation came.
Their minds were enlightened in an immediate experience of eternal life.
They laughed in ecstatic revelation.
This was unexcelled, complete awakening, liberation.
Visions of Paradise, universal truths and enormous insights were all experienced.
With ecstasy, the whole soul drank in revelations.

a new model of the psyche, new understanding of emotional disorders and of the therapeutic process, new insights into human nature and the nature of reality a new orientation complete with insight and energy sufficient to effect a dramatic and positive self-transformation a path which could lead to deep levels of psychological-spiritual growth or true enlightenment a process of experiencing Essence in such a way that it illuminated all of existence, a kind of flight TOWARDS reality a religious experience, a oneness with the universe, insight into oneself and all other mysteries a religious experience culminating in a sense of total self-understanding, self-transformation, religious enlightenment and possibly mystical union a rich spectrum of transpersonal experiences that provide profound insights into realms and dimensions of reality that are ordinarily hidden to human perception and intellect a sense of exultation, of immense joy followed by an intellectual illumination impossible to describe a sense of personal revelation that might be expressed as physical sensation, as personal insight, or as philosophic or spiritual understanding of self and universe a state of egoless “creativity” which permitted them to have insights so remarkable that by means of these they were able to make their greatest and most original discoveries a stirring emotional encounter sufficient to change one’s established values and the resolution to act upon the revelation a sudden breaking through from “reason” to intuitive “intellect” capable of a genuine insight into the divine Ground of all being a truly miraculous instrument for new perceptions and insights about those aspects of reality which concern him personally alarm clocks sufficiently powerful to wake us from the sort of sleepwalking existence which nowadays passes for “normalcy” an awakening of a consciousness always present in the nervous system but ordinarily dormant an experience, a vision, a revelation which will explain, without words, why there is a universe an illuminating insight into the transcendent and eternal spiritual nature intrinsic to human consciousness awakening this level of consciousness that dissolves boundaries and offers transcendent insight beauty, fun, philosophic wonder, religious revelation, increased intelligence, mystical romance, glamour, sexuality confront the awesome illumination of the metaphysical void and new energy transformations creative insights expressing themselves within and beyond some given technical convention dedicated to the process of consciousness expansion, to the ideal of maximum wakefulness and internal freedom deeply and uniquely within themselves at a depth to illuminate them with a cosmic wisdom drugs—part of the search for the meaning of life, as tools to reach new levels of awareness, for revelation energy, fun, religious revelation, sexual enhancement, aesthetic kick, ecstasy, accelerated learning enlightenment, full awareness of that blissful Reality whose attributes include inconceivable wisdom, compassion, light, beauty, energy and gaiety experienced an intense white light followed by a massive intellectual and moral illumination experienced the rapid kaleidoscopic flow of images, visions, insights and ideas of another world (eyes closed) far-reaching insights into one’s own self and into one’s relationship with others, an insight into “the nature of the universe and the purpose of life” great moments of rapture, bliss and ecstasy, flashes of beauty, love, sexual experience, perfection, awe, aesthetic or creative wonder or insight had a very real insight that their existence is part of an intricate, interconnected cosmic order increased perceptual sensitivity and portentousness, intensification of interpersonal experience, feelings of unique insight into life insightful knowledge or illumination about being or existence in general that is felt at an intuitive, nonrational level and gained by direct experience insights into aspects of people's lives on psychedelic drugs that you could never have known and they turned out to be true insights which go against common sense and social standards of sanity (The social standards of sanity are what's insane.)

intellectual and emotional adventure, sensory pleasure, enhanced awareness, self-exploration, religious and mystical insight

Leary never stinting to dare all in pursuit of his idealistic dream of universal psychedelic enlightenment

Leary one of the wisest, most illuminatory beings the world has ever known (Michael Hollingshead said that.)

LSD startling effective in releasing blocked emotions, recovering repressed childhood memories, revealing defense mechanisms and developing emotional insights may gain a new perspective on himself or gain an important insight into his defenses which results in a change of behavior

new insights into a new transfigured world of givenness, new combinations of thought and fantasy ontological and cosmological insights and their relationship to the revolutionary concepts of modern physics profound new understanding associated with fascinating philosophical and spiritual insights providing insights into the psychology of creation by supplying a new way to read the forgotten languages of the mind, a highway to the unconscious psychedelics, that they had the potential to facilitate for the individual the experience of major insights and problem solutions of an intellectual-emotional nature radical insight arising from entry into a condition beyond the realm of time, space and causality reaching that level of understanding variously referred to as illumination, liberation, and enlightenment relevant insights into the dynamics of important religions, historical and sociopolitical movements self-knowledge or self-awakening—the discovery of who or what I am when I'm no longer identified with any role or conventional definition of the person self-understanding, religious enlightenment, mystical experience, harmony with the universe and with other persons spiritual awakening, a direct visionary experience of transpersonal realities, the original source of mainstream religions spiritual illumination described as “second birth”, as a return to the original Paradise or Eden that each “thing-event” involves every other and that the highest insight is simply the perception of them in their natural “suchness” that psilocybin had the potential to facilitate major insights of an intellectual-emotional nature that psychedelic insight can supercede both science and religion as we presently understand them that self-discovery could be pleasant, that philosophy was fun, that science could be a pagan love of life, that revelation was joyful, the positive spirit of the 1960’s the awakening of the senses, the open eye, the naked touch, the real-eye-zation that this is it—I am eye! I am hear! I knose! I am in contact!

the complete transformation of consciousness which is “enlightenment”, “deliverance”, “salvation” the drug, its revelation of interior mysteries, its glimpses of supernatural beauty and sublimity the feeling of profundity and truth that insights acquire under the influence of psychedelic drugs the growth of an unfolding process of renewal that may be awakened by the mystical experience the human mind, its moments of intellectual and visionary illumination, its mysterious stairways winding downward and upward into the unknown the insight that the totality of existence forms a unified field or network which is experientially available to each of us the insight that what is divided in terms, that is, in thought and language may be united in fact the intellect divorced from old-fashioned neurosis, freed from egocentricity, the mind illuminated the moment of awakening, when the voyager discovers the wonder and awe of the divine life process the overwhelming beauty, the awe and wonder, the existential challenge, the creative and therapeutic insights the perception of the soul’s capacity for a broader being, deeper insight, grander views of Beauty, Truth, and Good the revelation of a unified cosmology, no longer sundered by the ancient irreconcilbles of mind and matter, substance and attribute, thing and event, agent and act, stuff and energy the select group of those who have passed through the verbal curtain into other worlds of consciousness, the elite brotherhood of the illuminati the session influencing her emotional condition and deepening her philosophical and spiritual insights those astonishing moments of insight which Richard Bucke called “cosmic consciousness” to awaken and vitalize the religious sense, to give it color, vigor and motivation, accompanied by emotion, excitement and feeling to be delivered out of separate selfhood in time and into eternity as realized in the unitive knowledge of the Ground to feel in herself an awakening to dimensions of reality to which she previously had been indifferent (or rather dimensions of reality which she knew nothing about before LSD) to gain insight into the potentials of consciousness and different states of consciousness of which I am capable to reach that level of consciousness variously called liberation, illumination or enlightenment to unveil the ineffable Other, the revelation of which might help put his or her soul in ontological context unusual insights into the nature of various emotional disorders and ways of detecting and healing them a legacy of intensely generous insight and teaching whose full value will not be fully understood nor valued until several years after the millennium (That was Caroline W. Casey talking about Timothy Leary.)

an experience extraordinarily satisfying in terms of emotions, sensations and fantasy, complete with technicolor and sound-track, creativity and productively loaded with valid insights awakening of a spirituality that is quite independent of the individual’s childhood experiences, religious programming, church affiliation and even cultural and racial background conscious exploration of the cellular nucleus and of the chromosomes, associated with insights into the physiochemical code of the genes (Yes, you can experience being inside the nucleus of a cell and become aware of what’s going on in there.)

orgiastic feelings of cosmic proportions, spiritual liberation and enlightenment, a sense of ecstatic connection with all of creation and mystical union with the creative principle in the universe providing new insights into the psychology of creation by intensifying and lengthening the subjective duration of the kind of subtle mental activity in which original productions begin and new meanings are created “stimulates the mystical faculties in human nature” far more powerfully and in a far more enlightening way than alcohol and, what is more, it does so at a physiological and social cost that is negligibly low the impossible paradox and supreme truth that perception is or at least can be, ought to be, the same as Revelation, that Richly shines out of every appearance, that the One is totally, infinitely present in all particulars the rich and accurate historical information that we can assemble from some ancestral experiences, providing us with valuable insights concerning periods that might otherwise be lost to history (eyes closed) the scope of the sacred realms, the profound insight of the sensory and physical manifestations of mystical experience, this enormous physical, mental, emotional and spiritual input the sense of perceiving truths not known before...insights into depths of truth unplumbed by the discursive intellect...the mysteries of life become lucid...illuminations, revelations, full of significance and importance, all inarticulate though they remain visions of many-colored geometries, of architectures, rich with gems and fabulously lovely, of landscapes with heroic figures, of symbolic dramas, trembling on the verge of the ultimate revelation (eyes closed) a broadening of awareness and an increase in individual insight a calm power of insight

a cosmic Awakening

a cumulative expansion of insight

a deep positive insight

a deeper insight of ourselves given by a new knowledge of the past a flash of insight

a flood of various specific insights of cosmic relevance

a genuine metaphysical revelation

a heavenly illumination

a journey of liberation and awakening a mental or spiritual awakening which allows us to look at the world as it actually is a metaphysical revelation

a mystical revelation

a new direct insight into the very Nature of Things a psychedelic religious revelation a revelation of dimensions that one is not aware of in everyday life a revelation of hidden things a revelation of transcendent domains

a richness of insights of cosmic relevance a sense of sacredness and of ultimate insight into the true and real nature of existence a state of non-game ecstasy and deep revelation a true and overwhelming revelation a true spiritual awakening a very valuable kind of insight a vision of higher reality such as comes in moments of scientific or psychological insight a visionary glimpse of a deeper reality, an insight into the true basis of the universe accurate new insights aesthetic, philosophic and interpersonal enlightenments aesthetic revelations all the revelation ever wrapped in ONE amazing new insights an awakening from within an awakening of perception which magnifies sensation an awakening of the God within an ecstatic revelation—going beyond, confronting God, getting out of your mind an enlightening journey an experience of the most enlightening kind an explosive, often ecstatic or prophetic revelation an illuminating emotional benefit an illuminating flash of insight an intellectual illumination impossible to describe an intense, dramatic inner process, this dynamic inner awakening an unprecedented revelation of beauty art-related insights attaining tranquility of mind, realization, insight and Wisdom awakening a generation to its own potential awakening consciousness awakening from conditioned, mechanical consciousness to true, objective consciousness awakening of higher human potential awakening of my social consciousness awakening—the timeless, self-sufficient life of the “eternal now” awakens in eternity’s sunrise awakens to full self-knowledge beatific glimpses of enlightenment and liberating grace being an object—insights into the nature of the object, how the object “feels” blissful transcendent illumination brings a sudden revelation from ignorance and illusion, enlarges the spiritual horizon calm joy, revelation chemically illuminated voyages clear insights compassionate insight into the self, the world complete deliverance into union with the divine Ground cosmic insights

cosmic revelations cosmological insights cosmological revelations creative insights dazzling ecstatic insights deep and valuable insights deep, comforting insight deep insights deep religious insight, moving spiritual insights deeper levels of insight, deeper realms of insight deliverance into eternity direct and nonverbal means of revelation and consciousness expansion direct insight—know the truth by not knowing direct insight which beholds truths that are universal direct revelation

divine enlightenment
divine revelations
dramatic insight dramatic insights into his ancestral past each time, awed by religious revelations as shattering as the first experience ecstatic, insightful and educational emotional and intellectual insights enlightened by contact with Reality enlightened consciousness enlightenment's brightening dawn experience of awakening to our "original inseparability" with the universe experience revelations about the life process experience their own divinity and attain profound insights into the nature of reality experienced a deep level of enlightenment experiencing an important revelation experiencing insights that resulted in positive changes in their lives feeling new and clean and awake feelings of euphoria and philosophical insight feelings of profound insight, illumination, and truth flashes of insight
fresh insight
from delusion and ignorance to knowledge and enlightenment gaining deeper insight into reality gamble out of spiritual faith, the psychedelic key to revelation gazing far beyond his eyes at the wonder of enlightenment getting strong metaphysical insights into the world giving the subject a truer insight into his personality glorious opening of heavens, revelation of the divine great feelings of mystical revelation growth, spiritual experience, insight, harmony guide the impulses awakened by ecstasy into creative channels hallucinogenic insight have been awakened to new dimensions and potentialities within have the insight to perceive heavenly visions, prophetic insights her new universal insights high level revelation hilarious revelations historical and anthropological insights illuminate the subject's exploration of self illuminates the shadows of man's mind illuminating insights

illumination achieved through the sudden and unexpected immediate awakening immediate insight into ultimate reality increased insight, extended awareness individual gains profound insights into the nature of religion insight ineffable in its deepest reaches insight into creativity insight into excellencies insight into the greatness of the soul of man insight into the inherent unity and peace of prelogical forms of being insight into the nature of their problems insight into the transcendent nature of human consciousness insight produced by chemicals the source of higher wisdom and creativity insight that is pure insight that the process is healing or spiritual in nature insight through the game facade to the inner essence insightful mystical states insights about cosmic workings insights and perceptions which we have all too often relegated to the domain of madness insights capable of effecting a valuable shift of perspective in the subject insights from the "other world" insights into ancient and aboriginal spiritual realms insights into cosmic creation insights into esoteric meaning insights into nature and varieties of transcendent states insights into the depths of truth unplumbed by the discursive intellect insights into the human mind insights into the nature of human existence insights into the network of unconscious processes insights of cosmic relevance, powerful mystical overtones insights of enormous importance insights of transcendental experience instantaneous awakening intense awakening intense insight introspective reflections with a sense of deep insight intuitive insight into oneself and others intuitive insights of astonishing clarity is awakened into reality flash of insight fully enlightened, totally liberated leading to a new realm and awakening and to a new beginning leads to illumination and releasedness, to victory and transcendence lofty insights into the meaning of existence and the universe metaphysical illumination metaphysical insights, intellectual insights moments of astonishing insight music a source of insight mystical enlightenment mystical insights mystical revelations

mythological insights
new emotional insights
new insight
new insight into the universe and man new insights into the essence of the creative process new insights into the human psyche new insights, new levels of awareness new insights or revelations of a transcendental nature new insights provided by consciousness-expanding experiences new levels of insight new philosophical and spiritual insights into the nature of reality non-addictive, revelation-recreation drugs of enlightening and liberating grace opening more and more realms of experience and revelation opens up vistas of natural satisfaction and aesthetic revelation opportunities for heightened insight, awareness and integral understanding our evolution from neurotic terrestrial mortals to enlightened cosmic immortals penetrating psychological insights philosophic revelation, evolutionary insight philosophic-scientific revelations produced a very rich array of insights profound awakenings profound insight into the ultimate secrets of existence profound new insights psychic insights psychological integration, illumination, self-transformation reawakened us to the innate joy and playfulness that is also part of life received a great flash of insight recognition of one's own divine nature and insights into the universal order religious enlightenment removing blocks and awakening consciousness, a process of purification revelation of the deepest spiritual realities revelation of the eternal revelation of truth revelations concerning the nature of the universe itself revelations full of significance and importance revelations of hitherto unconceived modes and uncharted fields of spiritual being revelations of nature's loveliness rich emotional and intellectual insights self-evident revelations of the highest truth serene enlightenment

shucked off the mind and awakened to eternity soul-shaking revelations of transcendent being spiritual awakening spiritual awakening, spiritual exploration spiritual enlightenment spiritual insight a gift of divine grace spiritual insights spiritual liberation, deliverance from darkness, salvation and illumination spiritual liberation, revelation of the ultimate truth, oneness of all of existence spirituality based on direct personal revelation spontaneous insights in new experiences states of spiritual conversion, interpersonal closeness and psychological insight sudden awakening sudden insights of omnipotence and glory superior awareness, religious enlightenment supreme insight into the mysteries of life tapping that rich field of knowledge, insight, and revelation. that great insight intelligence realm within you that true insight would lead to true change the alertly passive insight receiver the awakened earth
the awakened senses
the awakened soul
the awakening of a spirituality that has a universal quality the awakening of potentialities hitherto dormant the awakening of some unknown intuitional faculty the awakening of the true self the awakening to deeper spiritual values the awesomeness of the revelation the beauty into which the enlightened soul is delivered, a participation in eternity the beauty of nature, the feeling it awakened in me the bliss of this unexpected spiritual opening abounding in astonishing insights the chemical path to enlightenment the clarity of insight the clear Intuitive Mind, the enlightening Essence of Mind the cosmic intelligence test that results in enlightenment the cosmological illumination the crucial importance of drug-induced “far-reaching insight experiences” the deeper or higher levels of insight that can be reached the depth of his insight the drug as a liberator which facilitates accurate perception, self-insight the ecstatic smile that welcomes a sudden insight, a revelation of truth or of beauty the elusive path to even more elusive enlightenment the end and ultimate purpose of human life—Enlightenment the enhancement of insightful recall the enlightening and liberating knowledge of Reality the enormous spiritual force that is active during an awakening experience the evil forces that would deny man his rightful due, his birthright...his enlightenment the evolution of consciousness and the awakening of the human potential in everyone the experience of awakening or enlightenment (insight) the experience of revelation the experience of true insight the feeling of insight

the flash of enlightenment the gift of illumination received through an altered state of consciousness the grandest insight the grandeur, splendor, romance and revelation of LSD the harmony and wisdom of nature the holy sense of unity and revelation the ideal of maximum wakefulness and internal freedom the illumination and the meaning and the beauty the infinitude of the awakening the insight that life without spirituality is trivial and unfulfilling the insight that suspension of defenses is a liberating experience the insight that you are more than your physical self the most enlightening of all human experience the most intense feelings of joy and illumination the new awakening, the new consciousness, freedom the new insights provided by consciousness-expanding experiences the one moment's flash of illumination which seems to shake the whole universe the Real Thing, the ultimate illumination the realm of insight intelligence the revelation of Divine Truth the revelation of LSD the revelation of some deep mystery about the nature of God the revelation of the strangeness and otherness that hides in familiar things the romantic vision of illumination the sudden awakening of the mystical experience the sudden insight, the brilliant hypothesis, the truly "creative" leap the transcendental state of enlightenment theological revelations from Cosmic Central thirst for insight, adventure, strange surprises and mystical discoveries this alchemical show of revelation this eternal truth of religious revelation this colossal revelation this insight into the nature of things this psychic eruption, sudden insights and startling revelations this sexual awakening this shift from illusion to enlightenment this sudden flash of awakening this sudden revelation this tremendous and enlightening journey time to go in and leave the garden to the awakening stars to a complete deliverance into the eternal to advance toward complete beautification or deliverance through enlightenment to awaken deeply hidden secrets in your underconsciousness to awaken spiritual energies to awaken our true identity to awaken the spirit of self-divinity to awaken to joy, light, bliss, universal understanding and higher consciousness to awaken to the realization to awaken to your true identity to be spiritually awake to cut through the daze and dope of mindless existence and wake us up to enlighten the heart and mind to expand limited perceptions and awaken vision to facilitate insight and personal growth to obtain insights into his or her true nature to try and awaken humanity too egocentric to achieve enlightenment and a total deliverance transcendental revelations true awakening

true insight that would lead to true change true path to Enlightenment ultimate enlightenment unity with this state of perfect enlightenment universal insights universal truths and insights vast experiences and insights via LSD visionary insights wake up in this new brilliant world waking up from the illusions of ego was like uncovering a secret revelation or discovering the Holy Grail were illuminated with new meaning what is "recovered" in mystical wisdom by deep insight would not have had such insight without mystic super-knowledge would wake up to the essential divinity of the human being